

- Valerie Coleman grew up in Louisville, Kentucky. She began her music studies at the age of eleven and by the age of fourteen, had written three symphonies.
- Coleman's composition style mixes genres like jazz and Afro-Cuban.

- She is the founder, creator, and former flutist of the Grammy® nominated Imani Winds, one of the world's premier chamber music ensembles.
- Valerie Coleman is among the world's most played composers living today.
- Coleman composed two orchestral works, 2 works for concert band, 15 chamber pieces, 3 solo wind pieces, 6 pieces for wind quintet and numerous arrangements.
- Want to learn more? Check out Coleman's website vcolemanmusic.com

Listen to Umoja

* Search for this title on a music streaming platform (YouTube, Spotify, etc.) to find a recording